

Portable Oxygen Concentrators -- Markets Reach $3 Billion By 2026

LEXINGTON, Massachusetts (April 29, 2019) – WinterGreen Research announces that it has published a new study Portable Oxygen Concentrators: Market Shares, Strategy, and Forecasts, Worldwide, 2019 to 2026. The 2019 study has 182 pages, 57 tables and figures. Worldwide Portable Oxygen Concentrators markets are expected to achieve significant growth as the pandemic emergency emerges as a worldwide issue. Some Portable Oxygen Concentrators manufacturers have greater market power in specific markets, those with good online marketing reach including Inogen. Vendors have seen a significant increase in demand in these specific markets during the pandemic, helping in the sale of Portable Oxygen Concentrators.

The Sars-2 coronavirus is really a bad thing. Significant death rates have been recorded. Portable Oxygen Concentrators are a front line of defense and supplemental oxygen at home will be for a long time. Every health agency worldwide is urging more use of them. This trend is expected to continue for a long time, even after vaccines are available to containing the spread.

Testing and Covid-19 are part of the ways being used to manage the disease. Portable Oxygen Concentrators are needed to address the respiratory difficulties brought by Covid-19. Portable Oxygen Concentrators are but one aspect of the ways that Board's of Health have to approach the pandemic, but an essential aspect.

Testing is needed to know whether or not a person has coronavirus.

Testing is needed to know whether any person around an infected person has a coronavirus.

To stop Covid-19 extensive testing is needed, in combination with use of Portable Oxygen Concentrators, hand sanitizer, continued shelter in place, and selected quarantine response.

According to Susan Eustis, lead author of the team that prepared the study, "Growing acceptance of frequent use of Portable Oxygen Concentrators is a new reality in the pandemic era. These products provide basic respiratory protections going forward."
