Market Research Study

There is no substitute for having senior analysts do the work of understanding a market. The WinterGreen Research study is organized in a way that supports taking a look at a market from a variety of directions. There is an executive summary for those who want a quick view of the most important findings. There is a market definition and market dynamics presentation. The market shares and forecasts by segment follow in chapter two. This gives a concise presentation of the numbers and the market driving forces. Most important for really understanding the market are product descriptions in chapter 3. The ability to compare what each company is doing to approach a market, to look at the nuance of different approaches to the same market gives product managers a concise view of alternative directions to take with a product platform.

To understand a market, it is not sufficient to prepare a few tables that show a list of features and put check marks next to features offered by a certain company. All the features are expressed differently by each vendor, by each market participant; it is the through study of nuance, of differences in the context from chapter two market share analysis of who is leading the market and who is poised to lead the market going forward that helps key decision makers. Study of the relative feature function packages is done with pictures, text, and tables and figures.

Each study contains analysis of selected technologies that drive the market and summaries of the leading companies in a segment. See the complete table of contents on the WinterGreen Research site or available from your distributor.
